

THE Bloomfield Record
A WEEKLY JOURNAL
S. MORRIS HULIN, Editor and Proprietor.
Office 29 Broad Street.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1896.

Bloomfield Historical Relics

The Parish House of the First Presbyterian Church this week has been transformed into a museum, "crowded with curiosities and relics of early times, beginning with the colonial period and extending down to the present day. The exhibition is full of historical interest and surprisingly suggestive of change and progress in this locality during the past two hundred years."

Over the entrance door is placed in shadowed, a blue-point of Bloomfield Township, and next to it under it a map of the town of Newark, on which is laid out in red ink the position of the large map of Bloomfield. It was in 1768, showing all the houses along what is now Franklin and Broad Streets, beginning with the Amos Dodd house at Franklin and Broad St., and extending north to Ephraim Morris' mill and farm house at Bay Avenue.

There is also shown on the wall a framed picture of an early school-house of this region, a small stone building that stood near the corner of Broad Street and Belleville Avenue, and upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

One of the few doors of the old church, a section of one of the columns that supported the first pulpit, ten steps high, a plush sofa used by Mr. Judd, a foot stool used by Rev. Mr. Sherwood and Rev. Dr. H. W. Ballantine, former pastors.

The General Bloomfield relies shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

The General Bloomfield reliques shown are numerous, chief among them the Bible given by Mrs. Bloomfield, published at Trenton in 1791. It is placed upon the same little, mahogany table used in the first services of the church at Deacon Davis' house. Several books given by General Bloomfield are exhibited, also his portrait and parlor chairs.

Continued From First Page.

the prominent city churches, handled the music. The opening prayer was by Rev. V. L. R. Lockwood, D. D. Rev. Rollin A. Sawyer, D. D. of Montclair presided. He spoke of the former associations which bound him in affection to the Old Church, and expressed the thought that this should be a time of great thanksgiving for the blessing of the past and present. Then he introduced the speaker of the evening.

Dr. Burwell opened his address by reference to the walls of the church, how dear they must be to the congregation, from the sacred associations they held to all; and with this remark followed a series of stories and reminiscences that gave color and great humor to the address which followed, upon "Dutch in Relation to New Jersey Puritanism."

The speaker brought a hearty Dutch greeting from the oldest existing evangelical church in America. He designated the Old Bloomfield church as an infant of days compared with the one he represented, which had passed its second centennial. He spoke of the pleasure of "remembering" and the delight of fellowship. Then with telling earnestness he drew the sketch of early Dutch Beginnings in America, and the sturdy characteristics which marked the race. He traced their growth, known as the "Dutch" to the industry and honesty and economy of our forefathers in Holland. The sale of Manhattan Island was referred to as a good precedent, noting the fact, however, that our more recent dealings with the Red man have not been carried on with the same just impulse.

The steward principles which had induced the maintenance of a foot of ground, political liberty and religious freedom, notwithstanding all counterfeits, made them fit subjects to join hands with the persecuted heroes of Puritan New England in the signing of the Declaration of human equality and independence.

A loyal, conscientious race he drew them, whose blood was not withheld in the cause of religion in which they willingly sacrificed all and gave a goodly company to the list of martyrs. He showed our debt to the rugged ancestry to be great in that the principles of universal education implanted in their hearts when they lived in Holland are still to be found in the glory of Puritans by doing justice to the Dutch.

At the end he pointed the national obligation in view of our country's standards of freedom and equality, to open the gates to the oppressed from other lands who seek an honest living among us.

Farrand-Dunn. In the Peden's Memorial Church Tuesday night, Miss Helene E. Dunn, daughter of Mrs. Lottie A. Dunn, was married to Howard Percival Farrand, by Rev. Chas. H. Dodd, pastor of the church. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock. The best man was W. Terhune Plum, and the maid of honor was Miss Josephine Farnam. The bridesmaids were Miss Grace H. Irwin and Miss Aurilia Vorhees. The bride was attired in white satin, trimmed with pearls and ending in a court train. Her ornaments were diamonds, and she carried a bouquet of roses and white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids carried chrysanthemums and were dressed in green silk, under white organdy. The usher was Carl E. Suphus, Harry C. Blanchard, John M. Hague, S. Haines Plum, Percy Ingalls and William H. Roberts. There were about 250 guests at the church, and about sixty at the reception, which followed at the home of the bride's mother, 28 Grant Street. The church was decorated with palms, potted plants, and chrysanthemums, which were ranged on the platform and pulpit and around the gallery. The couple left on a trip East.

In many places the influence and active of the cyclists has seemed an abatement of the street sprinkling business, but there is much to be done in that especially of the winter months. How would it do for the Highway Improvement Committee of the New Jersey Division to work up some plan which would be applicable to local municipalities especially to all places where the sprinkling is done by private contract, so that next year we should add one more good improvement to the many that are already traceable to our work for the public.

Recruiting seems to be almost at a standstill. If we get that long-wanted 5,000 before December 1, the date on which our representation to the National Assembly is due, somebody has got to hustle. If you are one of the members who did not send in a new application, when you sent in your ballot for the division officers then secure a new application at once, so it will count.

L. A. W. Influence. The three local papers of the city has seemed an abatement of the street sprinkling business, but there is much to be done in that especially of the winter months. How would it do for the Highway Improvement Committee of the New Jersey Division to work up some plan which would be applicable to local municipalities especially to all places where the sprinkling is done by private contract, so that next year we should add one more good improvement to the many that are already traceable to our work for the public.

Salvation Army. One of the best "specials" in the Central Divisions, Salvation Army, will be in place over Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 14th and 15th.

Adjutant E. Taylor, or the Golden Minstrel, will come with his wife and conduct spiritual and spiritual meetings during their stay.

The Saturday evening meeting at the door will be taken.

The three o'clock Sunday afternoon meeting will be held at Park M. E. Church.

For the benefit of those who have not yet applied for the ballot, the following is the list of names of the members thereof, but all readers of the wheel will be able to find out who is on the list.

L. A. W. Influence. The three local papers of the city has seemed an abatement of the street sprinkling business, but there is much to be done in that especially of the winter months. How would it do for the Highway Improvement Committee of the New Jersey Division to work up some plan which would be applicable to local municipalities especially to all places where the sprinkling is done by private contract, so that next year we should add one more good improvement to the many that are already traceable to our work for the public.

Salvation Army. One of the best "specials" in the Central Divisions, Salvation Army, will be in place over Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 14th and 15th.

Adjutant E. Taylor, or the Golden Minstrel, will come with his wife and conduct spiritual and spiritual meetings during their stay.

The Saturday evening meeting at the door will be taken.

The three o'clock Sunday afternoon meeting will be held at Park M. E. Church.

For the benefit of those who have not yet applied for the ballot, the following is the list of names of the members thereof, but all readers of the wheel will be able to find out who is on the list.

L. A. W. Influence. The three local papers of the city has seemed an abatement of the street sprinkling business, but there is much to be done in that especially of the winter months. How would it do for the Highway Improvement Committee of the New Jersey Division to work up some plan which would be applicable to local municipalities especially to all places where the sprinkling is done by private contract, so that next year we should add one more good improvement to the many that are already traceable to our work for the public.

Salvation Army. One of the best "specials" in the Central Divisions, Salvation Army, will be in place over Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 14th and 15th.

Adjutant E. Taylor, or the Golden Minstrel, will come with his wife and conduct spiritual and spiritual meetings during their stay.

The Saturday evening meeting at the door will be taken.

The three o'clock Sunday afternoon meeting will be held at Park M. E. Church.

For the benefit of those who have not yet applied for the ballot, the following is the list of names of the members thereof, but all readers of the wheel will be able to find out who is on the list.

L. A. W. Influence. The three local papers of the city has seemed an abatement of the street sprinkling business, but there is much to be done in that especially of the winter months